L O N D O N, August 6.

The people of England are ever in extremes. Two days ago they were bent upon immediate war, and to day they exult at the faintest gleam of peace. Upon a calm perusal of the gazette extraordinary, we find nothing to warrant such exultation. From thence it appears, that simply the point of restitution of the captured vessels is agreed upon—the more momentous articles of free navigation and re-emburment of expenditure, remain for discussion. Restitution of the vessels, and indemnification to the parties concerned in them, were offered three months ago by the Spanish Ambassador at our Court. We do not mean to deny that the declaration of Spain wears the appearance of a pacific issue to the other points in question; but it is yet possible that those points may be the subject of much heated dispute. We do not think the prospect of peace so clear, but that the clouds of hostility may yet intervene.

RETROSPECT OF POLITICS.

The alarm originally created by our warlike preparations has changed its object, and perhaps by the delay suffered considerable abatement. Notwithstanding the frequent accounts received of Spanish fleets sailing from different quarters to unknown destination; the general opinion is not in favor of a war with Spain. And, indeed, when we consider the manner of publishing the Extraordinary Gazette, we are almost inclined to believe, that it was the intention of administration to induce the public to think, that an entire and satisfactory accommodation with Spain was an event next to certain. At least, if this was the purpose of the Gazette, we despair of its tendency. It must be allowed, at the same time that there are contradictory circumstances enough to destroy any supposition which can be formed the present in certain state of affairs.

The eyes of Europe, however, are at length turned on the British fleet. The Empress, knowing our partialities cannot view it without chagrin, and the King of Hungary, dreading the assistance which we now throw into the scale of his enemies, will probably be induced to shake off his alliance with the Empress, and while he accedes to the terms of the congress of peace, turn his attention to his Hungarian crown which has lately been supposed in danger from internal revolt. Accordingly the accounts received in the course of last week are strongly in favor of an immediate (and we think a wise) peace. The Empress's plans are for extending an empire which she cannot govern and has no inclination to make free or happy—and that at the expence of blood and treasure, which all her success cannot atone for or replace.

The Austrian provinces are still shackled by the hierarchical tyranny of pretended patriots, though, in reality, bigotted tyrants. To emancipate these provinces from their present slavery, to restore their ancient and popular constitution and laws, and to give them a head from the House of Austria, seems to be the design of his Prussian Majesty. — Much as this would tend to the real advantage of the people, we are confident that it will be thwarted by prejudices of the strongest kind and an opposition which force can only subdue.

August 19 A Tar in the neighbourhood of Wapping who lately opened a Tobaccoist's shop, has the following notice upon a board in the window :

Full many a gale I weather'd out,
Before the Port I made ;
And having worn my canvas out,
My anchor here I've laid

No winds for favor I invoke,
To spare, or fill my sail ;

But only beg my friends would Smoke,
And blow a pleasant gale.

It was recently reported in town on Friday evening that the English had taken New Orleans from the Spaniards; the account is said to have come by a gentleman who is arrived from that place by land and who says he was present when the English took possession, which account seems to be confirmed by another gentleman who has just arrived from the same place by the way of Philadelphia, and who says on his way down the Mississippi, from Orleans, he passed an English 74 64 and one transport, on their way up the river, and that before he left the mouth of the river he heard a heavy cannonade supposed to be at Orleans.

Treasury Department, Sept. 20th 1790.

IT is hereby made known, that the following arrangement has been adopted towards carrying into execution the act, making provision for the debt of the United States viz:

Loan Office certificates, and those issued by the commissioners for the adjustment of accounts in the several states, will be receivable only at the treasury and by the respective commissioners of loans within the states in which they were respectively issued. The certificates issued by the register of the treasury, by the Pay-master General and commissioner of army accounts, by the commissioners for the adjustment of the accounts of the Quarter-master's Commissary's, Hospital, Clothing and Marine Departments, indents of interest, and bills of old emission, will be receivable indiscriminately at the treasury and by the commissioners of all the States. The situation of the Checks has dictated this arrangement for the greater security of the public against impositions by forged or counterfeit paper, and the details which have been adopted from the same consideration for the execution of the business are such that it will give facility and dispatch, if applications from the holders of certificates of the register of the treasury and of the Pay-master General, and commissioner of army accounts, and of the commissioners of the five departments above mentioned, are made in the first instance at the treasury; and if applications from the holders of loan office certificates, and certificates issued by the commissioners for the adjustment of accounts in the respective states, are made in like manner to the commissioners of loans within the states in which they were issued. Transfers can afterwards be made to any office that the proprietors of the certificates may desire.
